MALDIVES AT A GLANCE

The history of Maldivian tourism started with a meeting between Italian travel agent George Corbin and Ahmed "Kerafa" Naseem in Colombo in 1971. Corbin was looking for vacant islands to take Italians fishing and swimming, and when he arrived in Malé with Naseem, he fell in love with the country at first glimpse and departed it only to come back with more tourists.

The first tourists arrived in 1972 and were looked after by Mr. Maniku and Hussain 'Champa' Afeef, another pioneer of the industry. Corbin and the tourists were convinced that the Maldives was the ideal location for fishing, diving, and relaxing.
